

International Conference
“Plants and Microbes: The Future of Biotechnology”
(PLAMIC2020)
June 15–19, 2020, Saratov, Russia

Dear Colleagues,

You are cordially invited to attend the Second International Conference “Plants and Microbes: The Future of Biotechnology,” to be held in Saratov, Russia, from June 15th to 19th, 2020.

The first conference in the series was held in June 2018 in the city of Ufa, Russia. That meeting brought together more than 200 scientists working in plant and microbial biotechnology. The participants were from Belarus, Iran, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Russia, and United Kingdom.

PLAMIC2020 intends to provide a forum for presentations and discussions of recent achievements and innovations in plant and microbial biotechnology.

The main themes of the conference are:

- Plant biotechnology, including micropropagation, in vitro culturing, genetic transformation, breeding, bioinformatics, and phytoremediation.
- Microbial biotechnology, including environmental and agricultural microbiology and bioinformatics.
- Plant–microbe symbiosis, including natural and artificial symbiotic systems (the legume–Rhizobium, actinorhizal, associative, arbuscular mycorrhizal, and cyanobacterial symbioses), plant pathosystems, metagenomics, and environmental biotechnology.
